Background:

The state's law for the prevention of cruelty to animals prohibits certain practices and activities involving animals. Among the law's prohibitions are transporting or confining animals in an unsafe manner, engaging animals in exhibition fighting with other animals, and poisoning animals. In addition, the chapter contains the crime of animal cruelty.

Animal cruelty in the first degree involves intentionally inflicting substantial pain on, causing physical injury to, or killing an animal by a means that causes undue suffering. Animal cruelty in the first degree is a class C felony.

Animal cruelty in the second degree is committed when a person knowingly, recklessly, or with criminal negligence inflicts unnecessary suffering or pain upon an animal. An owner may commit this crime by failing to provide necessary food, water, shelter, rest, or medical attention, or by abandoning the animal. Animal cruelty in the second degree is a misdemeanor.

The crime of animal fighting occurs when an individual owns, possesses, keeps, or trains any animal with the intent that the animal will engage in fighting with another animal. Animal fighting also occurs when an individual causes animals to fight or injure each other for amusement or gain, or aids or abets any such act. Animal fighting is a gross misdemeanor offense punishable by a maximum term of one year in jail, a $5,000 fine, or both. A person who is knowingly present as a spectator at an animal fighting exhibition or at the preparations for an animal fighting exhibition is guilty of a misdemeanor offense.

The animal cruelty law contains a number of exemptions, including: licensed research institutions; accepted husbandry practices in the commercial raising or slaughtering of livestock; the customary use of animals in rodeos or fairs; the killing of animals for food; and practices authorized under the "game laws."

Summary of Substitute Bill:

The crime of first-degree animal cruelty is expanded to include a person who, with criminal negligence, starves, dehydrates, or suffocates an animal, and as a result causes: (a) the animal to suffer substantial and unjustifiable physical pain that extends for a period sufficient to cause considerable suffering; or (b) death.

The crime of second-degree animal cruelty is amended to remove "depriving an animal of necessary food, water, or ventilation" as a means of committing the crime.

The crime of animal fighting is raised from a gross misdemeanor to a class C felony and expanded to include a person who knowingly:

- breeds, buys, sells, advertises, or offers for sale any animal with the intent that the animal will be used for fighting;
- participates in, advertises, or performs any service in the furtherance of an animal fight;
- transports spectators to an animal fight or accepts payment for admission to an animal fight;

- keeps or uses a place for animal fighting or allows a place to be used for animal fighting;
- serves as a stakeholder for any money wagered on an animal fight; and
- takes or receives a stray or pet animal with the intent of using the stray animal or pet animal for animal fighting or for training or baiting for animal fighting.

The provision making it a crime to be a spectator at an animal fight is removed, although participation in an animal fight remains a criminal offense. "Animal" is defined to mean a dog or a male chicken.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: There are people out there who neglect their animals to the point of real cruelty. When these offenses happen they are truly horrific, and they don't fit within a misdemeanor crime. By the time the neglect is discovered, it can take breathing apparatus to enter the place. There was a recent puppy mill case where 100 dead or dying puppies were found. It takes eight to 12 weeks to starve an animal to death. It is a painful and gruesome process of death.

Because this behavior is currently only a misdemeanor, it is not being addressed. Law enforcement officials have bigger fish to fry. This bill would give the law more teeth. These cases can go on and on, and no one takes them seriously enough. Many of the offenders are repeat offenders, and these people often treat their children the same way they treat their animals.

The punishment needs to fit the crime. The bill requires criminal negligence. It does not cover accidents. This bill doesn't affect livestock, rodeos or fairs, or research institutions. These are already exempted under the animal cruelty law.

Testimony Against: None.

Persons Testifying: Representative Kessler, prime sponsor; Susan Michaels, Pasados Safe Haven; Dr. Dana Bridges, Veterinarian; Ellen O'Neill-Stephens, King County Prosecuting Attorneys; Mark Steinway, Humane Investigator in Snohomish County; and Chris Cheney, Washington State Dairy Federation and Washington Fryer Commission.

Persons Signed In To Testify But Not Testifying: None.
